Introduction

The Berkshire Record Office (BRO) was established in 1948 to locate and preserve records relating to the county of Berkshire and its people, and to make them available for research to anyone who is interested in the county's past.

This is a guide to the sources at the BRO on World War I.

If you would like to visit the office to carry out your research, please make an appointment (contact details on the front cover). Please see our free Essential Information for Visitors leaflet.

Using this Guide

This guide is divided into the following sections:

Active Service overseas
Home Front
Remembrance

This guide is arranged by place for towns and villages throughout Berkshire. Records that are not place-specific are grouped under 'General' at the beginning of each section.

The reference that you find after each entry is the code to quote if you would like to see that record. Some references are for more than one item. Please ask staff for advice.

Who Did What?

During wartime many emergency functions were run by the Government. The two most important local councils in Berkshire at the time were Berkshire County Council and Reading Corporation, which were responsible for effecting emergency orders. These principal councils either carried out the orders themselves or delegated them to the other borough or district councils. The guide also includes records kept by other bodies and individuals.
